USDA RURAL DEVELOPMENT AWARDS $291,918 FOR THE DISTANCE LEARNING AND TELEMEDICINE PROGRAM

LUBBOCK, TEXAS, January 24, 2006– Bryan Daniel, State Director of Texas USDA Rural Development, today awarded a ceremonial check to Region 17 Education Service Center as a recipient of the Distance Learning and Telemedicine (DLT) Grant Program.

The DLT funds will be used to provide real-time interactive distance learning studio equipment and connectivity to educational resources outside the project area as well as provide training opportunities for teachers and technicians. The project will serve 5,252 students in 19 rural sites in northwestern Texas.

“Distance learning and telemedicine systems are powerful tools for rural Texas,” said Daniel. “Through technology, students and families can participate in classes not previously available to them, and people who live in rural areas can access expanded health care options.”

In Fiscal Year 2004, Texas was awarded $1.4 million to be distributed through the Distance Learning and Telemedicine Grant Program. The education projects helped schools provide students with advanced educational tools. Distance learning projects provide funding for computers and internet connections in schools and libraries. The vast array of study options available to rural students through distance learning technologies literally brings the world to their doorstep. Telemedicine projects are providing new and improved healthcare services beginning with patient diagnosis, through surgical procedures, and post-operative treatment.

USDA Rural Development strives to see that rural citizens can participate fully in the global economy by providing technical assistance, funding, and other programs that help rural Americans build strong economies to improve their quality of life.
